“ Dad,

*Here i am sittin here thinking about you again. I still cant believe your gone. I hope im making you proud of me still. I know we werent close but i love you always have and i always will but instead of getting to tell you that i get to talk to a grave. I know that you loved me i was your babygirl hell i was your only one and at times it was hard for the both of us to say how we felt maybe its because that i was and still am afraid to get close to people because when i do they always leave...i wish i would have been closer to you then i was. When i was at your funeral i talked to Teddy and when he told me about all the times you guys had it made me sad because even tho some of those things i wasnt into and prob never will be i wish i could have said i had memories like that but in ways i do like teddy will never be able talk about how you bought me like every winnie the pooh stuffed animal possible when i was little or the times when we went fishing together. I know ive made alot of mistakes in life but i hope you have forgiven me for them because well we all noones perfect. This month is really hard for gram especially since your gone now too so i hope you and maflin are watching over her and try to comfort her as much as you can. she really needs it. she loved you boys more then anything in the world...i love you both and ill be there to see tinese soon and hopefully it wont end up like it did last time when i saw you and just sat there and cried because thats all i knew to do i know i didnt let out alot of my feelings at your funeral and thats why i had to then cuz i was by myself and knew i didnt have to be strong anymore and that i could let go...well dad im gunna go i have to work in the morning...
i love you*
